

Home / News / Local News / Carlsbad

CARLSBAD: Nonprofit to sponsor Science Olympiad teams

- Story
- Discussion

By STACY BRANDT - sbrandt@nctimes.com | Posted: Friday, October 23, 2009 5:50 pm | No Comments Posted

Font Size:

Default font size

Larger font size

CARLSBAD ---- Carlsbad Educational Foundation will sponsor middle and high school students for a national science competition this year.

The nonprofit group will pay $18,500 for the registration, equipment and coaching costs for the Science Olympiad at Carlsbad Unified School District's three middle schools and Carlsbad High School, said Valin Brown, chief executive officer of the foundation. The Beckman Coulter Foundation has given the educational foundation a $7,500 grant to help cover the costs.

Each team will compete in a variety of science-based challenges throughout the school year.

"Science Olympiad is an innovative way to engage our children in the sciences while preparing them for successful careers," said Cathy Dougherty, grant director of the Beckman Coulter Foundation, a philanthropic arm of Beckman Coulter Inc.

Posted in Carlsbad on Friday, October 23, 2009 5:50 pm | Tags: Carlsbad, Coastal, Nct, News, Education

Share This Story

Discuss Print Email ShareThis

Latest Similar Stories

- CARLSBAD: CUSD to hold public hearing on spending plan
- CARLSBAD: 20 arrested after smuggling boat lands at state beach
- CARLSBAD: Council to consider lifting handbill distribution ban

Popular Stories

- MURRIETA: School band director found dead
- RANCHO SANTA FE: Encinitas teen dies in solo-vehicle crash
- OCEANSIDE: City's fire chief resigns
- RANCHO BERNARDO: Man arrested in stabbing death of neighbor
- REGION: Escondido in the game, despite L.A. stadium deal
- ESCONDIDO: Motorcyclist killed in crash on I-15
- SAN MARCOS: Teen injured, dog killed after being hit by vehicle
- RANCHO BERNARDO: Police say woman's death is homicide