BRANDING GUIDELINES

CORRECT LOGO USAGE

When designing a state or local Science Olympiad team logo, refrain from using any United States Olympic Committee images, including the five rings, flames, torches or any symbols pertaining to the Olympic Games. Science Olympiad has special permission from the USOC to use the name, but no corresponding images. The phrase “Science Olympiad” must be used in whole, not in part. Do not use “Olympiad” without “Science” attached. See the Science Olympiad website Policies section for a copy of the USOC letter.

Black & White

The Science Olympiad landmark can be used as either a positive or negative (black or white) mark where appropriate.

Color

Single color versions of the logo are supplied within the brand guidelines package, online as samples or may be amended to match school colors. Examples are shown on the right.

INCORRECT USAGE

To ensure the integrity and strength of the Science Olympiad identity, it is important to ensure that the brandmark is not altered in any way, and the guidelines adhered to as closely as possible.

To ensure consistency always use the artwork files supplied within the brand guidelines package.

Here are a just a few examples of incorrect usage:

NEVER distort the logo

NEVER try to re-create the brandmark or re-type the text in a different font

NEVER rotate the logo

NEVER place the logo in front of an image of similar color causing the logo to disappear

PLACEMENT

Clear Space

To protect the strength and integrity of the brandmark, a clear space area, free of competing visual elements, should be maintained. Please leave a space which is equal to the height of the Science Olympiad 'S,' as shown.

Placement

Always try to align the brandmark to the left edge of the page or screen within your design.

These guidelines were produced using Pantone Color Bridge swatches to ensure consistent color across a range of printed materials. # GUIDANCE FOR TEAMS

When designing a state or local Science Olympiad team logo, refrain from using any United States Olympic Committee images, including the five rings, flames, torches or any symbols pertaining to the Olympic Games. Do not use “Olympiad” without “Science” attached.

Science Olympiad teams holding a current membership, as well as organizations, colleges or schools hosting Science Olympiad events, are welcome to use the official Science Olympiad logos below for t-shirts, flyers, websites or printed materials such as tournament programs. Teams may sell their own t-shirts or items locally as fund raisers, but anyone wishing to use the Science Olympiad logo or name for any other promotional, sales or marketing purpose (such as for a DVD, CD or book) must first contact the National Office to receive written permission.
